

Finding the Right Merchandise is Key to Motivation

Sponsored by Canon

Merchandise and travel don't have to be mutually exclusive, particularly when it comes to incentives. Many companies achieve a great deal of success combining both into memorable rewards that motivate attendees to achieve greater levels of participation. Finding the ideal merchandise gift that will engage your attendees as well as make a lasting impression can be challenging. Whether you're hosting your top sales people or bringing together a key division of your company, or simply celebrating key employee milestones, selecting the right meeting gift is essential.

Canon products are a great way to engage your participants and get them motivated. Canon offers quality, brand-name products at a variety of price points; products to motivate anyone and everyone; a wide assortment of merchandise including cameras, camcorders, printers, projectors, and more; best-in-class product reviews; and world-class customer service, based here in the U.S. With so many feature-packed options offered, each product selection is sure to please.

Canon is now offering services to join you at your special event to help guests select their own gift. A representative will provide product information and basic set-up training to ensure guests can start creating memories the same day.
